

Recently, I understand, that there is an interest in more controls being put in place on satellite radio. My response to this is as follows. I live in the Richmond, VA. area and the quality of over the air radio has and still is terrible. I became so excited last october to learn of an alternative and that being XM radio. Since I purchased my XM, radio again has become enjoyable. I travel in my work and have found the poor quality of broadcast radio is just not limited to my home area but nationwide. XM not only offers quality but selections according to what your interest are. Please, please do not change any regulations concerning satellite radio. There are to many things in Washington(and our government) that are a total mess where you can spend your time on rather than trying to mess up something that is working perfectly. If you are looking for work, try requiring our AM and FM broadcasters to start putting a little quality in their programming.
